

Uganda Journal #4

07/04/2018

Living here has been so amazing, but also so different. In 4 days I have taken so much in. Between the food, the mannerisms, not having shoes on when going into buildings and more, it has been so incredible and I feel so grateful to be here.

I thought I would notice differences in how children act, but in reality I have felt and seen so many similarities. Our day starts with breakfast, then worship, then playtime, then lunch, followed by learning, bath time, and nap time.

Many of the children fight over toys, cry for their parents, and could even be selfish. I even see bad behavior. This reminds me so much of my usual job.

I am looking forward to processing more in the coming months.
